

Immigrants in South Carolina

South Carolina has a small but growing immigrant population. While roughly 5 percent of the state's residents are immigrants, they are a vital share of South Carolina's labor force. Combined, immigrants account for nearly 25 percent of all residents working in fishing, forestry, and farming, as well as nearly 15 percent in construction and extraction jobs. As workers, business owners, taxpayers, and neighbors, immigrants are an integral part of South Carolina's diverse and thriving communities and make extensive contributions that benefit all.

Nearly 5 percent of South Carolina residents are immigrants, while almost 4 percent are native-born U.S. citizens with at least one immigrant parent.

- In 2015, 232,749 immigrants (foreign-born individuals) comprised 4.8 percent of the population.<sup>1</sup>
- South Carolina was home to 105,708 women, 110,484 men, and 16,557 children who were immigrants.<sup>2</sup>
- The top countries of origin for immigrants were Mexico (28.2 percent of immigrants), India (5.7 percent), Philippines (4.5 percent), China (4.5 percent), and Germany (4.1 percent).<sup>3</sup>

Endnotes

<sup>1</sup> “Foreign born” does not include people born in Puerto Rico or U.S. island areas or U.S. citizens born abroad of American parent(s). U.S. Census Bureau, 2015 American Community Survey 1-Year Estimates. The American Immigration Council elected to use data from the 2015 ACS 1-Year estimates wherever possible to provide the most current information available. Since these estimates are based on a smaller sample size than the ACS 5-year, however, they are more sensitive to fluctuations and may result in greater margins of error (compared to 5-year estimates).
